

Own your space

Sit a little taller

Stretch a little wider

Speak a little louder

And own your space

If the room is four thousand square feet

Take up five and to hell with being neat

Be the brush strokes running off the sheet

And own your space

Embrace the space of your hair

Get used to having no care

Live your truth and be willing to dare

And own your space

Be in charge of your space

Command direction in your space

Be okay in your space

And take up space
